This, Chief-Justice Cockburn said, was unfair, unjust, oppressive; and over all the oppressiveness; injustice and unfairness, which Hongkong has ever seen, the case of Regina versus Moosa and Mahomed stands supreme. We refrain from further comment at the moment; but our only reason for doing so is the hope that we may be able after more calmly considering the whole subject, than is possible at present, to express what has to be said in words which if uttered at once might go even further than we desire.

THE result of the American expedition to the Corea must be a source of disappointment to troops. all who desire to see the progress of foreign relations in these parts. The failure which attended the attempt to establish more friendly relations with that country appears to be attributable, at all events in a considerdesign, which was abandoned in favoure of one F. How far this project was embodied in an official form we are unable to say, but there seems to be little question that the idea of its being the main object of the expedition was the secret of the opposition which the Coreans showed to the fleet. The facts are already well known. So soon as the ships reached the him that the usen's noiform did not entitle before adjudication there was a refusal to according to the design to be He Boissée, notice was given to the Corean petty officials that two ships would proceed the next day to survey the river, which it should be remembered led to the Capital. On this day, the Coreaus came again, and it seemed by no means clear, in fact rather the reverse, that notice had gone forward. Indeed it is certain that no assent to the surveying was received, and that there had been no time for the matter to be considered at a calculating machine, is dead. If he had one the capital It is not very surprising that, have been fired upon.

This must be a subject of regret to all foreigners here, as it is against the interests of all that the bie privilege. The second document was a prestige of any one nationality should be jeopardised. The regret felt must be the greater when it is considered that had the original idea been adhered to, the expedition, there, knew Essak Hammid personally. It was might have proved successful, and the way have been paved for at some future time opening up a commercial intercourse. which would have been beneficial to all foreigners in these parts. As it is, the difficulty of doing so is onhanced, and the chances of pushing progress in this direction have been indefinitely postponed. The whole affair has, in fact, been unfortunately bungled almost from the beginning, and has ended in an illustration of the old adage: that by grasping too much, one maylose all.

ARRIVAL OF H.E. SIR RICHARD MACDONNELL. Ava, at 10 a.m. A considerable number of residents assembled to greet him on his return. Orders for Copies may be sent to the Daily and he was welcomed with a hearty cheer on leaving the wharf in the carriage. A salute was fired from the battery as he landed, and the church bells sounded a peal of welcome. Some mistake, however, appeared to have been made in official quarters, as only a limited number of the Heads of Departments were present. while the usual body guard of Police were conspicuous by their absence. Captain Deane was seen mounted with a considerable body of armed Sibke and native Police making his way like a defeated warrior towards the Central Station some quarter of an hour after H.E. landed : so that there was evidently a mistake in this direction, and presumably a similar one in other Departments. The progress made, indeed, is so great that it is not an unusual thing now a-days for a Moreover, language, or some apology for it, is frequently employed for no other purpose, seemingly, than to furnish oral evidence of stupidity and ignorance. How many people egotist, and have mentally commented thus: "What a superlative fool!" It may be unfortunate in every way that the best qualified conversationalists are often the most silent of the instances the leading talkers of both only reveals the dunce and abuses the gift of at current rates. members of society, and that in the majority small and large parties are those who have speech so villainquely that a misdemeanor ittle education, few ideas, and less sense, and whose voices sound like the echoes of hollow skulls. It may likewise be unfortunate that i the impertinent sillinesses of talkative dunces should be telerated by sensible people, or be allowed to inspire a disgust for conversational privileges which so many listeners have felt. The matter is easily explained. A flagrant abuse of the highest blessing, no matter avenues of social life from their baneful what its character may be, always seems for presence. So far, charity and politoness the time being so to vulgarize it as to render it contemptible and almost repulsive. Thus, amongst lewdness and profanity, hearing, to delicate cars, is little short of a curse. Amidst scenes of vice and squalor, eyesight, to true Christian people, is productive of much pain. The agonies of suffering and grief, whether resulting from natural causes or from the deceits and treacheries of the world, make sense and consciousnesss the deadliest instruments of torture. So, likewise, the platitudes and verbiage uttered by brainless talkers, present the blessing or language in so disagreeable an aspect as to induce gifted tongues to withhold the ad- of "Worcestershire Bauce" to their own interior com-

The reason, therefore, is plain, why social parties are so apt to be composed of superficial minds, frivolous tastes and twaddling tongues.

CACCETHES LOQUENDI. There is a wide difference between mere talk and conversation—as wide, indeed, as there is between milk and butter. The one is the runnings of the tongue, the other is the churnings of the intellect. The silliest fool who is not dumb-a child, a parrot-can talk. To give utterance to sounds that stand for words is the easiest accomplishment ima ginable, requiring neither skill, study nor education, and it is for this reason that it is so common. A prattling babe can talk, and is of as much importance to the intellectual world as a jabbering blockhead of a man or and 4s. each. woman. The cacoethes loquerdi is not confined to age or class, or even genus, for the matter of that, for it may belong to a magpie as much as to a man, and make both equal flippancy. It is truly a troublesome thing to manage, and has brought to light more egotists and idiots than the pride of manhood cares to acknowledge, exceeding in number, as they do, all other denominations combined.

The story goes that on one occasion a wizard's assistant rashly invoked the presence of the devil-to assist him in his work, and then was unable to dismiss him. A similar efate very often attends an educated member of a party who innocently addresses a question to his neighbour. The answer is blunderly given, but the seldom silent tongue, once awakened from its unaccountable slumber, asserts its habituated energy, and rattles on through all the labyrinths of confusion and dullness with merciless action, and the questioner, like the wizard's assistant, finds that he has called up a demon over which he has N.B.-All Perfumes manufactured "in Bond," and no further control. GARRULITY. Probably the most extraordinary exhibition of which any idea can be formed is that of two or more inveterate talkers engaged in some silly argument. So long as a garrulous tongue has everything its own way, it is comparatively decent. Let it, however, encounter an opponent equally garrulous and enter upon a wordy warfare, and the din is
